

LEO FRANK'S LAST HOPE SWEEP AWAY BY COURT RULING

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT
UPHOLDS DEATH SENTENCE PASSED ON FRANK.

MUST PAY PENALTY

Every Means to Free Young Jew for Murder of Mary Phagan, Is Exhausted.—Chance for Pardon Is Faint.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, April 19.—The supreme court of the United States today decided against Leo M. Frank in the habeas corpus case. Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court. He said:

"In all the proceedings in the court of Georgia, the fullest right and opportunity to be heard, according to established modes of procedure, have been accorded to him."

"Respecting the fact that Frank was not present in the court rooms when the verdict was rendered (his presence having been waived by his counsel, but without his knowledge, as the Georgia court held that Frank, shortly after the verdict was made, was fully aware of the fact and he then made a motion for a new trial on over one hundred grounds, including this as one, and had that motion heard by both the trial court and supreme court, he could not after this motion have been finally adjudicated against his move to set aside a verdict as a nullity because of his absence when the verdict was rendered."

"Further Ruling.
"In the opinion of this court," said Justice Pitney, "he is not shown to have been deprived of any right guaranteed to him by the 14th amendment or by any other provision of the constitution of the United States. On the contrary, he has been afforded and now held in custody under the process of law within the meaning of the constitution. The state pardon officials of Georgia can now save Frank from paying the death penalty for the murder of Mary Phagan, a factory girl, if they so choose."

"Dissenting Opinion.
Justice Holmes, based his dissent largely on the ground that the finding of the supreme court and the existence of mock violence at a trial is not binding in the United States supreme court. He said he saw no reason for adopting a sterner move in criminal appeals than in civil appeals, and he saw no reason for law and fact being interpreted in civil cases as here, the United States supreme court may review a state court's finding of fact."

"Last Hope Gone.
Atlanta, Georgia, April 19.—Leo M. Frank's attorneys, when informed of the decision today of the United States supreme court, said they believed that every means to free Frank had been exhausted. They added that they now probably would prepare a petition for presentation before the Georgia prison commission, asking for a commutation of sentence."

"Appeal Fails.
Leo M. Frank's legal fight for life has taken place among the celebrated murder cases of recent years. Seven times since his conviction in August, 1913, the lower and supreme courts of the state of Georgia refused to grant Frank a new trial or set aside the verdict; three times the sentence of death was passed upon him and twice appeals were made."

"The Law.
Justice Holmes delivered a dissenting opinion, in which Justice Hughes concurred. He believed that the state pardon officials of Georgia can now save Frank from paying the death penalty for the murder of Mary Phagan, a factory girl, if they so choose."

to the United States supreme court, the first being unsuccessful and the second resulting in the decision today.

The murder of fourteen-year-old Mary Phagan, a factory employee, of Atlanta, Ga., which at first appeared to be a crime of only local importance, eventually developed into a case of national-wide interest. This was due in large part to the efforts of Frank and his friends to obtain for him a new trial or annulment of the verdict. Added interest in Atlanta was given the case because of its having been brought into a municipal political controversy, which involved attacks on that city's police and detective departments and wrangles among factions in the city administration. Soon after the trial ended, the case came in for agitation which spread all over the country.

Data on Crime.
Mary Phagan was murdered April 26, 1913, on a southern holiday in observance of Confederate Memorial Day. Shortly after noon of that day she was seen to enter the pencil factory, in Atlanta, where she had been employed and where she went to obtain wages due her. Her body was found next morning in the basement of the factory, with a cord about her neck.

Leo M. Frank, a young Jew, a college graduate, whose home had been in Brooklyn, N. Y., was superintendent of the pencil factory. Three days after the murder, Frank was arrested on suspicion and on May 8, Frank and a negro watchman at the factory, New Lee, were held by the coroner for the grand jury's action. Leo subsequently was released. Sixteen days later "Jim" Conley, a negro sweepster at the factory, made a confession to the police in which he accused Frank of having killed the girl, and declared he had helped dispose of the body. Conley, who was one of the chief witnesses for the state at Frank's trial, was convicted as an accessory after the fact in February, 1914, and sentenced to one year's imprisonment. He began his term last July.

ANARCHISTS GIVEN SENTENCES TODAY; SING SING PRISON

Abarno and Carbone to Serve Not Less than 6 Nor More than 12
Years for Setting Bomb in Cathedral.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, April 19.—Frank Abarno and Carmine Carbone, anarchists who made and set a bomb in St. Patrick's cathedral, March 2, within a few hours were worshipping in the pews. They were sentenced today to serve not less than six years and no more than twelve years in Sing Sing prison.

From a careful reading of the testimony and careful consideration of the case, Justice Nott further said, "I have no doubt the defendants were moving parties and not the tools of men more malign than themselves in the manufacture and placing of the bombs. It is true that the detective cooperated with them, but I do not believe the police were the instigators of the crime."

The jury recommended clemency because of the age and weak mental condition of the two men. Had they been of legal age, they would have imposed the maximum penalty.

The maximum penalty for the offense is twenty-five years.

NOTED WILL CASE IS TRIED IN ST. LOUIS

Sixteen Millions at Stake in Decision
As to Legitimacy of Heir to
"Vast Estate."

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
St. Louis, April 19.—Trial of one of the biggest will cases every heard in the civil court of the United States, that against the will of the late James Campbell, traction magnate, was scheduled to begin in circuit court here today. An estate conservatively estimated at $16,000,000 is involved. The contestants' case hinges chiefly on the question of whether Mrs. Lois Campbell Burkhart is a daughter of the late James Campbell.

Campbell's will left his entire estate in equal shares to his widow and Lois Campbell, to whom he referred as his daughter in his will. After their death and after the death of any heir which Mrs. Burkhart may leave her, the estate was to be divided equally between the establishment of a medical school and hospital.

Still further to embarrass the president has arisen an unfortunate controversy between Secretary Bryan and the German ambassador over the publication of a campaign for the election of 1916. It is not clear, in the first place, whether the so-called "note" is really a communication from the foreign office or whether it originated with the state department.

At St. Louis, Mr. Bryan declared it was not a campaign for the election of 1916. Mr. Bryan says the note was delivered on April 5, just as he was leaving to spend the week end at his country home in Asheville, N. C. that the note was delivered to him by a little attention to it, merely passing it over to a translator, and that he did not receive the translation until April 19. Mr. Bryan says he never consented to the publication of the note, whereas the ambassador maintains that he did. Some days ago, Mr. Bryan said he had not read the German note, but that he was preparing a reply. The president gravely objects to the character of the note and he considers it most unfortunate that this controversy should begin in a campaign for the election of 1916.

LETTERS FROM GERMAN SOLDIERS SHOW SPIRIT WITH WHICH THEY ENLIST.

Hamburg, April 19.—Many of the soldiers in the field are now being released from their military duties. Some of them have only taken out their first papers. As indicative of the spirit of these men the letter of one of them, who shortly before the war was refused full citizenship, is made public. It reads:

"We did not go to war in order to gain German citizenship papers, but to be Germans. We long have been Germans, even though the written evidence of it was lacking. Our attitude of mind made us Germans, and we were doing nothing wrong. It did not happen to have the papers, could we think and do other than we did? We could not stay at home. That would have been incompatible with our principles and our honor. With us to sit by and see others shed their blood for us and come back crippled and dead in the newspapers of their dead while doing nothing ourselves? People would have pointed to us in mockery. After all a hero's death on the battlefield is better than disgrace."

Berlin, via London, April 19.—German headquarters staffs after noon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities which reads: "To the south of Ypres the British were steadily attacking the German minor German positions still occupied by them in this locality. Near Ungelmuster, Belgium, Lieutenant Garos has been made a prisoner."

Lieutenant Garos is well known in the United States, having shown in many competitions in this country. Since the beginning of the war he has been in the front line and during the French military campaign he was captured. GRIPPING PASSAGES HEART OF HISTORY

REV. E. O. HOFFMEISTER SAYS
APPEALS OF AGES NOT ALWAYS CLOTHED IN FINE LANGUAGE.

GOD'S WORD HOLDING

Thought of Scriptures Have Power to Play on Personality and Character of Person.

Taking his text from St. John, Chapter 1, 1-18, the Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister, pastor of St. Peter's English Lutheran church, gave a gripping sermon yesterday morning. The Rev. Hoffmeister's discourse is appended: "There is an old saying, 'Familiarity breeds contempt.' This cannot rightly be applied to Scripture. But if you ask a Christian on what passage of Scripture he could talk, he might answer: 'That passage in St. John where Christ speaks of the Good Shepherd.' This is one of the passages of the Bible that has an heart appeal. In ordinary literature, it takes more than elegance of expression, a feeling of words or splendid thought to grasp and hold the attention of centuries of readers. But when we find a portion of the Bible that grips and satisfies the hearts of a countless host of readers, we are dealing with something of wonderful power—the very fact that it is so well known, and always has been a favorite paragraph in God's word should warn us that it never can be too familiar with it.

"In these words of Christ as they are recorded in St. John we find what is rightly called 'The Heart of History.'

"Christ spoke these words during His earthly ministry, but that does not mean they were not true before His earthly career. If we go back to the beginning of time, before the earth and the heavens were formed, before the creation of the angelic hosts, back to the time when God alone was—these words were true. St. Peter grasps this thought when in his first letter he writes: 'Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, the lamb without blemish and without spot who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world.' When our son comes to their father and says, 'Well, I have made up my mind as to what profession I will follow,' that is a big day to that father and son. But when from all time that Father and His Son knew what glorious task was to be accomplished by Him who is called Christ—the very fact that Jesus said 'The Good Shepherd'—that was then in order. And on the same day, God created Adam He brought a four-footed beast whose chief characteristic was selfishness, its utter inability to take care of itself, and provide for itself and defend itself from his enemies, we call it the sheep, and he who watches over it is called the shepherd.

"Now if there is a magical word in our language to conjure up pictures, it is this word shepherd. With the word are associated ideas of tenderness and devotion, we expect certain things of those who shepherd through the long silent hours of the night with the stars over their heads and the grass for their beds watch over their flock, they are close to their own and their creature's Creator.

"And when we turn to God's word with what amazing care has He left a very definite answer to the question God calls Abraham. He tells him bring his flocks with him and thereupon his flock was renewed this special task. Their flock the brothers were tending their flock and the guidance of their flock, they did not realize that they were typifying in Joseph the Great Shepherd and Bishop of our souls who was to come.

"When after forty years of princely training, through God's providence, Moses committed the act that turned him into a shepherd for forty years and day after day went by the bush and the flock, and made him change in his life and made him the shepherd of those Israelites during the years of wandering—he nor his peomaking history.

"Ask the boys who was the great shepherd and hear them tell about the time when the people needed a new king. The prophet asked Jesse to send in his sons, and the stalwart lads were brought before Samuel, but none of them were chosen of the Lord. 'Have you no more?' says a lad tending sheep. He is summoned and the shepherd is anointed king. The Good Shepherd is to be king of kings and lord of lords. And finally when the glad tidings of a savior are announced by the angel choirs to the shepherds of the plains of Bethlehem hear the message.

"But along with this word shepherd is the word shepherd. When Christ says the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep, his alway knew what that meant. When he said the world—out near the site of the Jerusalem temple he made a hill and we call the hill Calvary. The shepherd rendered to us an untold service. No man could take the life away from Christ—He voluntarily laid it down. Christ never carried a money bag attached to his belt. There was no one who could put a coin in His purse and buy Him the service He undertook. So likewise in our lives things that will count as the big things in life will be those that no one could buy us to render—but we did them through love and that looks for neither silver nor gold. There is no joy in any service that is rendered simply for the money.

"This shepherd is a shepherd indeed—He placed His sheep. That ought to be sufficient answer to anyone who says the church has too many hypocrites. The shepherd knows His sheep and we need not be afraid that He will leave His enemies' sheep in His eternal fold. His sheep also know Him. That is the other test. They follow Him. His sheep are theirs—His choice theirs—His are theirs—and His will is also theirs.

"Then He gives us that statement—wonderful in its simplicity. There it brings to mind and one shepherd, shepherds have been herding their flocks together. It is time for them to separate. One shepherd gives his sheep to another. The other follows him who likewise. The sheep follow him who leads. They know not of several shepherds calling to only one shepherd and only one call to follow. The only chance we have to enter that fold is to know the voice of the Good Shepherd. That is the heart of God in His history."

STREET CAR COMPANY RUSHING ITS WORK

New Track on Milton Avenue Work
Delayed by Non-Arrival of Rails.

Excavation.

Residents along Milton avenue who have been much disturbed by the noise of railway ties which have been left on the curb of the property will be pleased to learn that work of laying the new tracks will proceed as rapidly as possible now the rails have arrived. These rails are of the heavier pattern of suitable for street service and when completed the track will be one of the best strips in the city. The company also plans to repair all other defects in its roadway as soon as the "gang" of track layers arrive. In speaking of the delay Thos. S. Nolan said today:

"It was expected that the rails for the track along Milton avenue would arrive first. When the ties came they were distributed, as no great delay was anticipated. The rails did not arrive here until late Saturday. They are now being placed along the avenue. The work of excavation and track laying will be commenced and completed as soon as possible.

"The officials of the company regret very much that there is any dissatisfaction or complaint about the use of the curb for the storage of ties should be placed somewhere. They would have constituted an obstruction in the street; and made the company liable for damages in case of accident.

It is hardly probable that any injury to the grass along the curb will result. We hope everybody will be patient and undergo a little inconvenience in order of assisting and encouraging the improvement of the track and the street railway service. We are doing the best we can under all the circumstances, and hope that the public will appreciate it."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Mr. Editor:

I would like to tell the public why I left the employ of the Y. M. C. A. I was there as well as I knew. While there I was offered another position and when I notified the secretary that I wished to make a change he promised me that all the good things I would only stay, but he said I had made other arrangements and would not change them. Then at the other head officers came at me with more promises that they could and would do anything that I could stay until the building was remodeled. Well, under those conditions I told them I would stay. They told me to go ahead and learn all I could about the business of the building. Well, I went ahead and done the very best I knew how. I stayed at the building night and day and when the secretary was away working for someone else and my wife was confined to her bed with sickness, I still stayed at my post, until the secretary returned. Well, everything as I thought was going along all right. I was going to the office one evening and informed that my services were no longer required, and when I asked the reason, the answer was "misunderstanding." The management of the association there, one head to this association, and I am the head. Now what do you think of that? This was in the middle of the winter with my own position in view and a family to support. Is that Christianity?

A Few Why.

Why should one of the members of the board of directors send for me and ask why good men should leave the building? I told him I thought it strange he should ask me such a question. He said he was the secretary. He informed me that the business was all cut and dried between a few before the rest knew anything about it.

Why should a member stop me on the street and tell me the bath room was so much like a hog pen and there was so much noise and rough house going on he had quit the place altogether.

Why should janitor supplies be bought from a certain member when they could be bought other places for one-third less?

Why should an employee be given his check two or three days before it was due and be advised to go to the bank and draw his money before someone else got what was there?

Why should cashiers and telephone collectors and other employees be given accounts against the association there day after day only to be informed that the secretary was not in?

Why should a certain man who had done repairs say he would give the account to a lawyer to collect if he did not soon have a settlement?

Why should members have to hide his check two or three days before it was due and be advised to go to the bank and draw his money before someone else got what was there?

Why should young members be allowed to conceal fine cigarettes, cigars and tobacco, neckties and collars (all new) in their lockers when they are afraid to take them home.

CHRISTIAN'S ADVANCE AMONG THE JAPANESE

REV. AXLING OF TOKIO, SPEAKS
ON CONDITIONS IN ISLAND EMPIRE.

SERMON BY PARISOE

Declares Press and Pulpit Are Agencies of Democracy in Evening Service at Presbyterian Church.

"It is but a question of time and chance to bring Christianity to the Japanese race, who are anxious and eager, with their hearts open and minds ready to receive the Gospel. Rev. William Axling of the Baptist Tabernacle at Tokio, Japan, in his address Sunday morning at the Baptist church, for the text of the effect of the Christianization of Japan, said:

"The Christian conquest in Japan has not been characterized by spectacular movements, but every high of advance has been made in a hard to fight, pitched battle. The Japs are turning their backs upon the old beliefs, for Jesus Christ is gripping their hearts and the island empire is beginning to accept the Gospel. The Japs are turning their backs upon the old beliefs, for Jesus Christ is gripping their hearts and the island empire is beginning to accept the Gospel. The Japs are turning their backs upon the old beliefs, for Jesus Christ is gripping their hearts and the island empire is beginning to accept the Gospel.

Three years ago there was an organized campaign of Christian denunciation, and the result was that every larger city of Japan has Christian converts numbering into the thousands. The leaders of the commercial, political and educational life of Japan have organized into a class for the study of social and national questions and Christian religion has been a subject that is of paramount importance. The Japs are turning their backs upon the old beliefs, for Jesus Christ is gripping their hearts and the island empire is beginning to accept the Gospel.

Presbyterian Service.

The agencies of democracy and civilization, said the Rev. George Edwin Parisoe, in his evening sermon at the First Presbyterian church last evening. The agencies of democracy and civilization, said the Rev. George Edwin Parisoe, in his evening sermon at the First Presbyterian church last evening. The agencies of democracy and civilization, said the Rev. George Edwin Parisoe, in his evening sermon at the First Presbyterian church last evening.

They Christian religion depends upon the loyalty of those who have accepted it. This statement is true of any lodge or any organization, for every member must be filled with sincerity and earnestness. The success and growth of the church or organization to which he is a member. The purpose of the church is to furnish to the community, through its organization, a true and lasting religion. The church represents the teachings of Jesus Christ. Some of us are poor people and yellow journalists.

The press is a part of the national life from an industrial, commercial and educational and semi-religious standpoint, that is interested in the reforms of the day. The press represents the public sentiment, the thought and the day. The reporters see the "seamy" side for they deal with the uncurrent of life in their daily work. What inspiration is it to the church officer in acts or deeds that will demand that the wrong doings be exploited to the public? It is just that this should be done for the pulpit and press should both demand the truth. The pulpit and the press together must be dogmatic in establishing the laws of the nation and the laws of Christ.

THE FINAL COST.

Our students and economists have never yet been able to tabulate the costs of war, the great difficulty being that the advantages and disadvantages of war do not run in the same terms.

Fifty years ago the civil war in the United States gave us a transcontinental railroad, a new meaning to the Constitution, a new bond of union for the states, a new nationalism, a national banking system, a unified currency, a civic spirit and a material progress not previously dreamed of.

How could this account be balanced against killed and wounded, four billions of war expenditure and industrial and social disorganization and destruction in the southern states?

Put your pencil over these items before you read further and see if you can strike a balance, and see also if any main item is omitted. In a large way all the debit and credit items affecting the United States are enumerated above.

But was the civil war a matter only between states?

Did not the civil war settle a world problem and answer the question of whether one human being was to be hereafter born on this planet as the owner by divine right over another man whom he could call his chattel slave, to be whipped or sold—the white race by divine right, dealing in the bodies and souls of men and women born black? Southern slavery and the social and industrial organization there perished by the only manner in which it could be put out of existence—in civil war, when men gave up their lives for principle. The south scorned the idea of selling its slaves to the nation. Slavery was its institutional birthright, guaranteed by the Constitution.

The world today is staggered by the cost sheets of modern warfare. In eight months, seven empires and four nations or states have flown at each other's throats and sent bullets into the bodies of more than two million men, and the world is flurrying on the cost sheets.

But who can supply the debit and credit elements to begin the true enumeration for cost sheets?

At least twenty-three problems are involved in this war and its settlements, and they are between the Kiel canal and the Bosphorus, or the German indemnity to Belgium and the Bagdad railroad. Geographically, none of them are a thousand miles apart. But how many thousand miles apart are the real issues in this war?

The life of France, as a nation, as well as republicanism in France, is at stake. The sacredness of treaties and the right of Belgium to exist are involved. The right of Germany to make and to hold a war power that could bid for world domination is involved, as well as the right of a military autocracy to make war without popular information or vote.

Where is the economist that can value or begin to set down the debits and credits in these accounts? The national debt of the United States is a billion dollars. All the gold in its 7,500 national banks is less than a billion dollars. Ten European states are today spending a billion dollars a month in direct warfare. Who can count the losses and gains? Puerile are the statistics, idle the guess that can measure in money or time the war era upon which the world has now entered.

MEANS TO AN END.

That the present war will have as one of its direct results a decided trend towards absolute prohibition is considered probable by the advocates of that doctrine. The little passage at arms in the Iowa legislature a few days ago when the legislature also indicated that there is a possibility of a prohibition plank in the next democratic national platform. Our South American friends below the equator are also interested in this problem and the Christian Science Monitor says:

Vitality concerned in the European struggle because it strikes at the economic well-being of the west coast republics. Peru would yet draw its lesson from the war. Deploring the disastrous effect of the conflict on the world's shipping, making it extremely difficult for the nation to do business with other countries, Peruvians nevertheless believe that the prohibitive decrees against the use of liquor in Russia, and to some degree in France, have proved their value, since in the case of Russia, at least, the prohibition, revolutionary in its intent, is apparently no less so in its effect on the empire.

Discussing this phase of the course of the war, El Comercio, one of the leading newspapers of Lima, calls attention to the efforts of Peru in the past to convince the people of the benefits of temperance. Praising the governments abroad which have shown presence in using their armies for experimental purposes regarding abstinence, El Comercio says that Peru for some time has tried to make the schools agencies for the dissemination of the temperance idea, so that when the children of today reach maturity the situation will be well understood by the people.

With their overwhelmingly large Indian populations, countries like Peru, Bolivia, and Ecuador must realize the importance of raising the natives to a higher plane than has obtained to date. Much has already been accomplished to prove to the people in the scattered mountain sections that there is a future for all who take a hand in developing themselves, and in bettering their environment. But where transportation is so difficult as in the three republics mentioned it is no easy matter to carry this message through the lands, come the seasons and repeatedly. The South American Indians are docile and willing to listen when advised, but unless they are steadily guided there is likely to be some disappointment to those who wish the natives well but have not the opportunity of frequent contact with them.

El Comercio points out that at the Pan-American congress in Lima, in 1912, a noted Argentine savant advocated a plan to unite South America in respect to the advocacy of temperance. Prohibition was to be the ultimate object, but it was thought that education along such lines by means of a campaign would prove very effective for the present. Peru caught at the idea quickly. No concerted action resulted from the proposition, it is true, but today the situation shows a vast improvement, with the leading newspapers of Lima giving up their columns to temperance discussion and aligned with the government in strengthening the movement.

There is no reason why the coming Janesville fair should not be both financial success and also an exhibitor's success. The plans outlined for the coming show on a scale that give promise of unusual scope for varied displays in every line of industry, both commercial and agricultural, in the county, and there is no reason that the exhibit should not prove a money-maker. There will be something to please every class of visitor from horse racing down to amusement features, and as for live stock and other exhibits, they will be there in profusion if present indications point to anything.

Janesville could and should support a cracking good semi-professional baseball team. There is a field of home talent to draw from that should encourage some local manager to organize a team and arrange a schedule for Sunday and holiday games the season through. While the city could not support a regular league team, it ought to encourage the game to the extent of giving backing to a semi-professional team that would be a credit to the city. Janesville should be a good baseball town, and former glories on the diamond count for anything.

It is easy enough to criticize a man in a public position, be he an officer in the civic government, or a paid employee of a semi-public corporation. A great hue and cry can be raised, a fire burst of wet swigs that will create a great smoke, but when the blaze is extinguished what is usually found? The very men who make the complaint are the last to substantiate their charges whether they had merit or not, and the complaint drops by its own weight and conditions resume their former trend without further comment.

The sex of Old Abe, the war eagle of the Eighth Wisconsin, has become a national problem. One doubts that Abe was a "he" until some taxidermist intimated that "he" was a "she," and some old soldier writing for space in newspapers recalled a story of the colonel of the Eagle regiment eating eggs for breakfast of unusual size, much to the disgust of "Abe." Perhaps Cleopatra was a "he," but if "she" was "she" fooled Caesar and Marc Anthony wonderfully well.

The safety valve down at Washington is being closely watched by President Wilson. If he has any real preference in this great European struggle he has not evinced any favoritism in any official act. He has been in a dangerous middle course and thus far the United States has not really suffered materially by rulings from the state department or from the foreign offices of the warring nations.

Just what the international law is relative to giving aid to a warring battleship of a foreign nation at war by a neutral nation is somewhat hard to decipher. One German commerce destroyer that reached an American port was finally interned, and now comes a second which demands repairs, coal and provisions and then insists it will put to sea and fight it out once more with all the ships the allies can muster.

One of the funniest combinations of lobbyists in the state this year is that of the normal school and liquor interests. One would think these two distinct "spirits" would not mix any quicker than vinegar and water, but they do and control a goodly number of votes in both houses.

ITCHY SALT RHEUM

Sometimes Called Eczema—Removed by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Salt rheum is one of the worst and unfortunately one of the most common of all diseases. How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales, and then does this all over again! Sometimes it covers the whole body with inflamed, burning patches and causes intense suffering, which is commonly worse at night.

Local applications may do some good, but they cannot permanently relieve. The disease will continue to annoy, pain and perhaps agonize, until the blood has been purified and the general health improved.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, the good old reliable family remedy. It has given perfect satisfaction in thousands of cases. Insist on having Hood's Sarsaparilla, for no substitute acts like it. Get it today.

The four this morning, Miss Mary Elizabeth MacDonald to George L. McGee was solemnized at four o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald, 329 North Jackson street. The Rev. Joseph Chalmers, pastor of the Baptist church, read the ceremony, using the ring service. Miss Lou MacDonald, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Louis D. Gage attended the groom.

Before the ceremony Spencer Williams of Minneapolis sang "On Promise Me, and Because," after which the members of the wedding party took their places as Miss Cora M. Holt played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride wore a simple gown of white duchesse satin trimmed with lace, with the bridal veil, and carried a shower bouquet. Her attendant wore pink tulle trimmed with lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A wedding luncheon was served to the seventy guests following the ceremony. Floral decorations for the party were in the room where the bride and groom were seated. A large basket of the spring flowers adorned the table in the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. McGee left this evening for a brief wedding journey after which they will reside at 533 North Chatham street.

Mr. McGee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. McGee, who have resided in Janesville and has been employed for several years past on the Gazette editorial staff.

JEFF SMITH CLAIMS WELTER TITLE WITH UNDEFEATED RECORD

Has Decision Record Over Clabby in Australian Battle—Practically Unknown to American Fans.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, April 19.—Of course you don't know Jerome Jeffers. And when we inform you that Jerome Jeffers is Jeff Smith, you still don't know him. If you are, let us tell you that Jeff Smith is the middleweight champion of the world—if there is such a thing. No, you don't know him. Maybe you think Jimmy Clabby is the champion. Or Mike Gibbons? If you do—forget it. If there is a middleweight champion, it is Jeff Smith. This New Jersey boy is without honor in his own country. He has better claim to the title than any other middleweight in the game. Jimmy Clabby has the most colossal nerve of any person known. How he can call himself a champion is a mystery. True, he won a ten-round referee's decision over Eddie McGorty in 1913—and by a foul in 1914, but since then he has been defeated twice in twenty-round contests. Dave Smith, the Australian champion, beat him, and Jeff Smith whipped him easily.

Gibbons' Claim.
Gibbons claims the title on the strength of a few ten-round no-decision contests. He doesn't hold a decision over any first-class middleweights. However, Mike is a grand fighter, and had the contests with Clabby, McGorty, Jeff Smith, and at least of longer duration than ten rounds he might have won the same. The fact remains, however, and they must go down on record as no-decision battles. Champions are not made that way. Where would Williams?

Smith's Record.
Jeff Smith's claim is based on twenty-round contests. In 1913 he knocked out Adrian Hogan, then middleweight champion of Europe, in eleven rounds. In his last two fights he whipped Mickey King, the champion of Australia. Just before he easily won from Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGorty.

Although the record books credit McGorty with the victory in that battle, it will be remembered that the management ordered the decision of the referee reversed and given to McGorty instead of Smith. When the referee raised the Oshkosh lad's hand at that time, the weightiest round, the crowd broke into riot and threatened to destroy the stadium. Even McGorty's manager, at the time, Joe Levine, admitted that it was the most unseemly reaction he ever witnessed. Snow Baker said that Jeff Smith won by a mile.

History of Name.

But why is Jerome Jeffers known as Jeff Smith? That, as Ruddy Kip Jers, because Jeff Smith and a professional boxer the same evening. Jeff says that his sister is really responsible for the adoption of the peculiar name of Smith. But she was not responsible for his entry into the boxing game. Oh! no, she bitterly opposed that form of exercise, and felt deeply humiliated when she realized that her brother was a pugilist. That was why he took the name of Smith.

Bayonne, N. J., is the home of the Jeffers family. Jerome and his sister, Phil, are also the home of Phil Daly. Phil is Jerome Jeffers' first employer and was his first manager as well. Phil Daly was the owner of the ice plant, and also was the proprietor of a billiard hall. Jerome and Jeffers worked in this billiard parlor.

Frank Smith was an athletic young man that drove Phil Daly's ice wagon. Juggling those big chunks of ice and those huge muscles on young Smith's arm, the huge muscles made Smith think he was meant for a boxer.

Now we have the complete list—the names of the Jeffers family. Jerome Jeffers, Phil Daly, and Frank Smith.

As Jerome and Frank worked for the same man they became acquainted. Frank, nursing his ambition to become a fighter, coaxed Jerome to act as a sparring partner. Every evening after work the boys donned an old pair of gloves and whaled away. Soon Jerome was as good a boxer as the other.

At last Frank Smith was to make his debut as a full-fledged pugilist. The day before the battle he decided on a little trout for himself. He went to the river and caught four rounds in real earnest. Result? Jerome Jeffers knocked out Smith.

That wallop killed all of the ice man's ambition. "I-I-I," he said as he sat up—"you the fighter—not me!"

So Jerome Jeffers substituted for Frank Smith the next evening.

When he climbed in the ring he thought of his sister. What would she say if she knew? But he didn't back out. Instead he made up his mind that she would never know; he would assume Smith's name.

So he did and won the fight, became a fighter, and won the middleweight champion of the world—if there is any.

Maubetsch, the Michigan star, is suffering from acute indigestion. Those much advertised pills of his are evidently aren't as great training dope as they were cracked up to be.

CHAMPION TO BATTLE IN TWO SHORT MILLS

Boxing Card For the Week Holds No Great Interest—Welsh to Meet Watson at Hudson.

BOXING BOUTS THIS WEEK

Monday, April 19.
Joe Mandot vs. Patsy Drouillard, 8 rounds, at Memphis, Tenn.
Tuesday, April 20.
Freddie Welsh vs. Red Watson, 10 rounds, at Hudson, Wis.
Johnny Wolgast vs. Sid Murphy, 10 rounds, at Ithaca, N. Y.
Gunboat Smith vs. Battling Leary, 10 rounds, at Boston, Mass.
Jack Dillon vs. Tom Halden, 8 rounds, at Nashville, Tenn.
Frankie Calahan vs. Charlie White, 10 rounds, at Brooklyn, N. Y.
Thursday, April 22.
Sam Robideau vs. Walter Mohr, 10 rounds, at Bridgeport, Conn.
Jack Dillon vs. Al Reich, 10 rounds, at St. Joe, Mich.
Friday, April 23.
Freddie Welsh vs. Battling Leary, 10 rounds, at Columbus, O.
Sammy Burns vs. Johnny Cashill, 10 rounds, at St. Joe, Mich.

Freddie Welsh will be up to his old tricks of gathering in good American duets, meeting second rate fighters in short ten round no-decision bouts. On Tuesday, Hudson, Wis., he will glimpse at the champion clincher with Red Watson. Watson has fought a few times in the north, but is not considered as championship caliber as Pat Brown, of Superior, ago. The champion should win by a safe margin as Watson is a wage and not a clever miller. On Friday night Welsh hops into the ring against Battling Leary at Columbus, Ohio for ten rounds, and should win. Battling person is, no one in the west knows.
Joe Mandot will make things interesting for Patsy Drouillard at Memphis, Tenn., tonight and should win by a good margin. In the short bout, Gunboat Smith and Battling Leary are going to stage their little boxing act at the unsuspicious public at Boston, Mass. Tuesday night for 12 rounds. The other bouts are of a minor nature.

ELMER LEE BOWLING CHAMP OF MILWAUKEE

Janeville Young Man Rolls High Score in Milwaukee Tourney and Team Wins Title.

The best bowler in Milwaukee—Elmer Lee of this city, rolled 299 in the Cuyahoga league, and also put the team five into the championship of the city of Milwaukee last week. When he is not sending the ball down the "groove" and not marking up "turkey" Lee has the pleasant occupation of caring for the giant locomotives at the St. Paul hospital for truck engines during the night run. On time of the bowling is slack-tracked, during the off season, Lee takes a baseball glove and a generous bite off the plug, and can play ball with the best of them. He played at St. Paul with the Cardinals for the last two years in numerous games. He has been in the bowling game for years and his friends even declare that his short height is due to the fact that he tried to break the record with an oversize ball when he was still wearing kids in 1912 when bowling with DeVoss in the international tournament at St. Paul, the two men events, "feathers or Shorty" is the proud owner of a medal which he received from the American bowling congress for his prowess for a score of 299.

JEFFERSON FIFTH GRADERS IN EARLY SEASON VICTORY

Members of the Jefferson school fifth grade baseball team swamped the fourth grade nine at baseball Saturday. The score was 33 to 14. Gordon Eller and Vernett Grant did the heavy work for the victors while Willie Jones and Adrien Aiton were on the firing line for the losers. George Burpee's stick work was a helping feature in the winning of his team, also his fast sliding at third base. Jack Smith did commendable all-around work for the losers.

If the luck which favored Harvard in football sticks by the men who were the maulers of the Crimson is able to cut a big figure in baseball this spring, The varsity batting order, Nash, 1b; Reed, ss.; Abbott, 2b.; Gannett, r f.; Hardwick, 1 f.; Brickett, c.; Mahan, Wilcox and Frye, Hardwick, Brickett, Mahan and Wilcox were all star footballers last year. Brickett and Hardwick took turns captaining the team. Mahan is the 1915 football captain.

Mike Dorizas, Penn's all-round star, is sure that he will do better than forty-five feet in the shotput this season.

But Donovan will have one advantage in that he will not have any cutting to do, but has room for three additional players if the should present itself. On what the Yankees have shown to date, the team seems to have been improved considerably since last year. New proved the lineup, while the team's spirit is much improved over what it used to be.

ORGANIZE BREEDERS WHEN FARMERS COME TO JUDGING CONTEST

County Stock Association Affairs Will Take Definite Form—Small Meeting Saturday.

The weather Saturday played havoc with plans to organize a Rock county stock breeders' association. Seeding time at hand, the farmers almost as a whole found it impossible to attend the meeting and hear J. W. Scribbs, of Rosendale, president of the Fond du Lac County Breeders' association discuss matters of organization and income. Enough were present, however, to complete tentative plans for a big meeting to be held here on May 22, at the Fair Grounds, in connection with the stock judging contest under the auspices of the board of directors of Janesville's big fair.

About twenty were present. Sentiment was in favor of the organization, and following a short address by Mr. Scribbs, J. Van Etta, a young and enthusiastic farmer living between Lima and Whitewater, was selected as chairman of a committee to arrange for the getting of the county stockmen together here on May 22. Mr. Van Etta will have the services of L. A. Markham at his disposal and together they will choose the remaining members of the committee. Superintendent Antisdel happened in and in response to the question was of the opinion that through his office the matter could be brought to the attention of many breeders.

On Tuesday six automobiles advertising the stock judging contest will tour six respective routes and visit all country schools in the county in the interest of the gathering on May 22. It has also been suggested that the matter of the organization of the breeders' association be also laid before the farmers at this time and plans have been made accordingly. Suggestions of the holding of the meeting for the organization of the association at the county farm at the time of the annual picnic was considered, but tentatively abandoned since it was desired to organize as quickly as possible. It may be, however, that a meeting will be held at the county institution at the time proposed. It was felt that Superintendent Cash Whipple would continue the farm picnic this year, as other superintendents had done in the past, and the consensus of opinion was that Mr. Whipple would be only too glad to be at the services of the farmers of Rock county in permitting the meeting to be held in connection with the annual gathering at the farm. Further matter on this proposal will be made known by the Gazette when Chairman Van Etta, Mr. Markham and Secretary W. J. McDowell of the Janesville Commercial club, and Superintendent Whipple reach a decision.

Although he would like to have seen a large gathering of farmers for the organization of a stock association, Mr. Scribbs was not at all taken back by the small turnout, and stated he expected just such a meeting at this time and with the weather so excellent for farm work. He promised to return when conditions were better at a later date.

Question: How many bushels of barley shall I sow to the acre?
Answer: It is best to sow from 1 1/4 to 2 bushels.

Question: I want to set out some raspberries. What are the best kinds and how shall I care for them?
Answer: Geo. J. Kellogg is an authority on the growing of small fruits, having had years of experience. He says "Raspberries will do well on any good corn land and will do better in partial shade than any other fruit, except the blackberry. The best kinds of red are King, Queen, Cuthbert and Brandywine. London was at the head of the list, but it is subject to disease and is but little grown now. These are all upright in growth and should be set 3 1/2 ft. just as early as the ground will work in April. The tops should be cut back to 6 inches. A choice yellow berry is the Golden Queen which is of the upright kind and very desirable. The best purple raspberry is Columbian. This has the same habits as the black cap, it propagates from the tips. This is one of the best family berries but does not take well in the market. The best blacks are Cumberland, Plum Farmer, Older Gregg, Kansas and Nemah. Mammoth chester was the largest and best years ago but is surpassed now! All of the black and Columbian are propagated by tipping. (There is no law against this kind of tipping.) The ends of the canes are stuck into the ground about two inches when grown so that they become wiry or snakey, usually in August or September. These tips are left until the next spring when they are dug, leaving eight inches of barly shall I sow to the acre? They should be set early in April in rows 3x3 ft. A fork full of well rotted manure about and over each plant of these as well as the reds. This will protect them from growth and insure their growth. Clean cultivation and rich soil are essential to success. Manure may be applied around the plants and between the rows to keep up the fertility year after year. As soon as the canes get eighteen inches long they should be nipped so they will throw up side branches; we do not expect any fruit till the year after planting. When the fruit is picked, the fruiting canes should be cut out and burned to destroy insects and fungus growth. Many object to the red raspberry because it sucks so badly. However these suckers may be left to form a matted row eighteen inches wide, and not less than ten inches apart, treating all other suckers as weeds. From these varieties, they are Ancient Breton and Snyder. While these fruits will do well in partial shade they will do better without, but the ground should be well covered with mulch.

MORE STRICT RULES WILL BE ENFORCED REGARDING AMATEURS.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, April 18.—With the spring opening of the athletics and the near advent of "summer" baseball, sport mentors and athletes are today making rulings and interpretations of the old, old question—"What is an amateur?"

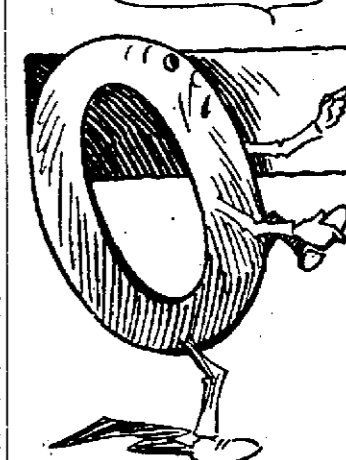

New restrictions are cropping up to hamper amateur athletes in gathering in the long green. New stand-ards of sport purity are about to be established. The "good old summer time" this year promises to be financially barren, compared to former years. Closer tab is to be kept on the athletic activities of college athletes during the vacation.

The newest rule of vogue is that of a western college requires an "athlete's oath," pledging athletes to take no money for their services. The most drastic feature of this new oath is that college letters may be recalled if an athlete is found breaking the money-acceptance rule. Some strange contradictions in the

COUPON BALLOT SYSTEM MAY BE MADE MANDATORY.

Madison, Wis., April 17.—The assembly judiciary committee was occupied all afternoon Friday with hearing arguments for and against the Hambrecht bill to make the Dunn coupon ballot system mandatory for adoption throughout the state. All other bills on the afternoon's calendar were put over. Monceva Dunn of La Crosse, author of the plan, which is now made optional for counties, presented exhaustive arguments in its behalf, and it was vigorously opposed by E. M. Wing, cashier of the Batavian National bank, La Crosse, and Valentine Keppel, Onajaka, former assemblyman. The committee took no action but there are indications that a favorable report will be returned.

CHAPTER VII. Before the Battle.

TELL you, Dr. Rutledge, I have become somewhat dubious about this Sunday campaign. I am much afraid the results will not be what you expect in Bronson."

"Why do you think so?" asked the Iowa minister, speaking earnestly.

Mr. Townley and Allan Rutledge were sitting together in the comfortable study of the People's church. It was the day before the expected arrival of Mr. Sunday and his company of assistants, and the two ministers were conversing on the subject of the coming battle between the forces of right and the forces of wrong. Allan Rutledge had been expressing himself enthusiastically about the impending struggle and the certain victory of the right when Mr. Townley unexpectedly interposed his doubting comment. "My recent studies in the social sciences," responded Mr. Townley in a serious tone of voice, "have been convincing me that our churches have been altogether on the wrong track. We have been seeking the individual only. Mr. Sunday represents the old type of evangelism, which lays stress on the individual. What we need is the new evangelism, which sees clearly that the individual is exactly what society makes him. We must seek to regenerate society instead of wasting our time with individuals."

Allan Rutledge looked closely at his companion and remained silent. "Take Bronson as an example of what I mean," continued Mr. Townley. "There are numbers of young men and women who are led astray in Bronson every year, but these young people are not so much to blame. Society is to blame for allowing these gambling dens, houses of vice and saloons to exist. Let Mr. Sunday turn his attention to society and seek to redeem us socially and I will back him up with my full strength, for I know he is a man of power."

"Mr. Townley, I want to have a plain talk with you on this subject. I have felt that you were not altogether in sympathy with our campaign and that you suffered it to go forward more to please me than because it appealed to your conscience and judgment. Let us talk frankly together. Unless you are prepared to back Mr. Sunday in his effort for Christ and righteousness in Bronson our forces are divided right at the start."

"But I shall certainly not oppose him, and I wish his campaign all the success possible," said Mr. Townley quickly. "I have noticed that Thomas Marchmont is making the Courier a real factor for progress," said Mr. Townley a little later. "Did you read his article in yesterday's paper entitled 'Give Billy Sunday a Hearing?'"

"I surely did," responded his companion, "and I want to tell you that Mr. Marchmont's change of attitude is due in part to the fact that he came over to some of the evangelistic meetings I have been holding lately every Sabbath evening."

Albert Townley looked at his fellow minister in surprise at this speech. "I tell you it is true," said the other laughingly. "You know, I have a special friend in the Courier office. Reginald Nelson told me that Mr. Marchmont was deeply stirred by a sermon of mine on the text, 'How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?' By the way, when we begin our work of redeeming the social life of Bronson we shall need to depend greatly on the Courier. I am praying that both Mr. Marchmont and his young city reporter will be converted through and through during the Sunday meetings, and I think they will."

"Reginald Nelson seems to me to be pretty much of a Christian already," replied the other. "But he has never confessed Christ," answered Allan, "and the non-Christians of Bronson are already hiding behind him, as they do behind every good man who refuses to align himself with the Christian forces."

"I thought I was going to have that young immigrant in my church," said Albert Townley regretfully. "You know, I discovered him and directed him to Bronson, but you soon captured him."

"I plead not guilty," said Allan Rutledge. "It was our young people who captured Reginald. You know, he met Joy Graham on the boat."

"Of course I know that. I introduced them myself."

On the afternoon of the same day Allan Rutledge met by appointment with Mr. Graham and his daughter, and he accompanied them to the great tabernacle which had been erected for the Sunday campaign.

The tabernacle was located in the northwest part of the city on a large vacant stretch of land. It was somewhat out of the way, and Mr. Graham remarked as he approached it: "I am afraid, Dr. Rutledge, that you have made a mistake in the location of the tabernacle. It will be utterly impossible to draw the people out here."

"But we could not get ground enough any nearer," replied the minister. "It would have been better to have built a much smaller building and had it full than to have this monster tabernacle half empty."

"It will be full from the first night and will be kept full during the entire five or six weeks of the meetings," responded Dr. Rutledge, with enthusiasm. "I know Mr. Sunday's record too well to be disappointed."

"But Bronson people are different. They would not come out as far as this, no matter who is here."

"Do not the circus people camp here when they visit Bronson?" asked the other.

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Graham, smiling. "But Mr. Sunday is no circus." "He attracts the crowds better than the circus," answered Dr. Rutledge. "There is nothing that attracts men, Mr. Graham, like the religion of Jesus Christ, and Mr. Sunday presents it in a way that appeals to the average American citizen, especially the working people."

"I have noticed that Thomas Marchmont is making the Courier a real factor for progress," said Mr. Townley a little later. "Did you read his article in yesterday's paper entitled 'Give Billy Sunday a Hearing?'"

"I—I hope it is, by gee!" exclaimed the other, and then they got up and went over to examine the envelope for the tenth time. "I wish he'd telegraph or write or do something, Dan. She's never had a line from him. Maybe this is something at last."

"What puzzles me is that she always seems disappointed when there's nothing in the post from him, and here's a cablegram that might be the very thing she's looking for and she pays no attention to it. It certainly beats me."

"You know what puzzles me more than anything else? I've said it a hundred times. She never goes outside this house—except in the garden—day or night. You'd think she was an invalid—or afraid of detectives or something like that. God knows she ain't a sick woman. I never saw a healthier one. Rain or shine, winter or summer she walks up and down that courtyard till you'd think she'd wear a path in the stones. Bats like a soldier, laughs like a kid, and I'll bet she sleeps like one, she's so fresh and bright-eyed in the morning."

"Well, I've got this to say, Joe Riggs: she has been uncommonly decent to you after the way you used to treat her when she first came here. She's made you feel overlastingly ashamed of your idiotic behavior."

"I beg your pardon, Danbury," exclaimed Mr. Riggs, striking the table with his bony knuckles so violently that the books and magazines bounced into the air. "Don't you ever say anything like that again to me. It's against the rules for me to call you a scoundrelly liar or I'd do it in a second."

"For your sake, sir, I'm glad it's against the rules," said Mr. Dawes, fiercely. "I'm mighty glad."

Mr. Riggs followed a sheepish grin to steal over his wrinkled visage. "I apologize, Danbury."

"And so do I," said his friend, whereupon they shook hands with great cordiality—as they did at least a dozen times a day since the beginning of the new regime.

"She's the finest, loveliest woman on earth," said Mr. Riggs.

"I never knew I could be so happy as I've been during the past six months. Why, this house is like a bird cage filled with canaries. I sometimes feel like singing my head off—and as for whistling! I haven't whistled for years till now. I—"

"Sh!" hissed Mr. Riggs, suddenly backing away from the table and trying to hide behind the door.

"He has taken the only way to conquer himself," she mused, half aloud.

Mr. Dawes, being fat and aggressive, succeeded in being the first to clutch it in his eager fingers.

"Better read it, Mrs. Brood," he panted, thrusting it into her hand. "Maybe it's bad news."

She regarded him with one of her most mysterious smiles. "No," my friend, it is not bad news. It is good news. It is from my husband."

"But you haven't read it," gasped Mr. Riggs.

"Ah, but I know, just the same," she deliberately slit the envelope with a slim finger and held it out to them. "Read it if you like."

They solemnly shook their heads, too amazed for words. She unfolded the sheet and sent her eyes swiftly over the printed contents. Then, to their further stupefaction she pressed the bit of paper to her red lips. Her eyes flashed like diamonds.

"Listen! Here is what it says: 'Come by the first steamer. I want you to come to me, Theresa. And see! It is signed 'Your husband.'"

"Hurray!" shouted the two old men. "But," she said, shaking her head slowly, "I shall not obey."

"What! You—you won't go?" gasped Mr. Riggs.

"No!" she cried, the ring of triumph in her voice. She suddenly clasped her hands to her breast and uttered a long, deep sigh of joy. "No, I shall not go to him."

Mrs. Brood was descending the stairs, lightly, eagerly. In another instant she entered the room.

"How nice the fire looks," she cried, crossing the room. Never had she been more radiant, seductively beautiful than at this very instant. "My cablegram—where is it?"

The old men made a simultaneous dash for the long-neglected envelope.

"But, Mrs. Brood, he wants you!" came almost in a groan from the lips of Mr. Riggs.

She lighted a cigarette. "If he wants me, Mr. Riggs, let him come and get me," she said sending a long cloud of smoke toward the ceiling as she lay back in the chair and crossed her feet in absolute, utter contentment. "He will come, my dear old friends—oh! I am sure that he will come."

"You don't know him, Mrs. Brood," lamented Mr. Dawes. He's made of steel. He—"

"He will come and unlock the door, Mr. Dawes," said she, serenely. "He is also made of flesh and blood. The steel you speak of was in his heart. It has been withdrawn at last. My friends, he will come and get me—very soon. Ring for Jones, please."

"What—what are you going to do?" Mr. Dawes had the temerity to ask.

"Send a cablegram to my husband saying—"

She paused to smile at the flaming logs, a sweet, rapturous smile that neither of the old men could comprehend.

"Saying—what?" demanded Mr. Riggs, anxiously.

"That I cannot come to him," she said, as she stretched out her arms toward the east.
